Wonder O'the Wind – A Common Man’s Quest for God by W. Phillip Keller (BIO KEL). “The Lord hath His way in the whirlwind . . .”. Phillip Keller – author, naturalist, agriculture specialist and wildlife photographer – recounts his adventurous life in this testimony of how God’s Spirit guides even the willful into His ways. Born and raised in East Africa, Keller grew up with an intense love for the land, its wildlife and its people. For a time he was inclined to disbelief and cynicism by the way the world distorts and abuses God’s handiwork and he struggled to exert his own will against society’s pressures, sometimes even against the will of God. Finally, the Wind of God’s Spirit has His wondrous way. The author tells the gripping story of God’s loving but abrupt intrusion into his self-centered life. He re-lives his trek back to Africa and eventually around the world in His service. A vibrant love for life, for God, and for His world, pulsates through this fascinating story of how one man’s will was brought into harmony with the will of God.

Least Of All Saints by Grace Irwin (Novel IRW). In Least of All Saints Grace Irwin has brought into vital focus the kind of religious conflict that anyone concerned with both reason and faith cannot long avoid. Her main concern is with a human being – Andrew Connington – and the human problem – belief and unbelief. And to make these come powerfully alive for the reader she has chosen to embody her vision of the religious struggle not in the grossly sentimental characters and events that are found in so many “religious” novels, but in characters and events made real by their expression of the hard realities of Christian faith and human sin, especially those deceptive sins of thought and word if not deed.

God Knows My Size - Silvia Tarniceriu by Harvey Yoder (BIO TAR). Is there really a God? This is the question 13-year-old Silvia faced. Her teachers laughed at the mere idea of God. Yet her parents and pastor not only believed in God, but served Him devotedly. Which of them was right? So Silvia decided to find out for herself if God was real. She asked Him for three things – a pair of shoes, a sweater, and a coat. For a large, poor, Christian family in communist Romania, these things were almost impossible to buy. How could she expect a miracle? But it happened! God answered her prayer in a way far more beautiful than she expected! And the truth He showed her then sustained her years later as she faced persecution and even prison for Christ’s sake.
