Born Again by Charles W. Colson (BIO COL). The origins of this book go back to a sultry late-summer day in 1974. President Nixon had only recently resigned; the government was in disarray and the country, exhausted by the convulsions of Watergate, was in numbed shock. I was languishing in an Alabama prison, a casualty of the greatest political upheaval in American history. My own spirit was crying out in agony. How could all this have happened? My mind wandered back over two decades from the days when I was a crew-cut Marine lieutenant to the years when I sat in the Oval Office at the side of the President of the United States. I had served all the time with a burning idealism about my country. How could we who had the trust of the nation have strayed so far afield? There must be lessons for my life --- for other --- for an anguished nation. What was the redemptive answer?

Beyond the Battle for the Bible – by J. I. Packer (239 PAC). Will the life-giving message of the Gospel be lost in endless debates and harangues over biblical authority? Dr. J. I. Packer believes that this is a grave and present danger --- unless Christians can move beyond the battle for the Bible and reaffirm the power of God’s Word. But how to do this? The key is in recovering an authentic approach to biblical study, interpretation, and understanding in a clear and thoughtful way Dr. Packer shows how this can be done. First we must return to the kind of thorough and systematic approach in Bible reading and exposition --- including both the Old and New Testament --- which has always characterized public worship at it’s best....

Bobby’s Friends! by Phia van den Berg (YOUTH FIC VAN). “Lights!” Jessie announced loudly. Suddenly everyone was awake. Karachi appeared beneath them on the lefthand side. At first they saw only a narrow strip of tiny lights, but soon it broadened. The plane swung sideways as it turned, gliding about the sea of city lights. The children hadn’t paid much attention to the other landings during the trip, but this one became very exciting! Pakistan! Every year a part of Western Pakistan underwent a drastic flood, washing away all the gardens and homes of the inhabitants. Father Falois, agriculturist, was asked by the government to try to control the floods. But life in Pakistan was so different for Bobby and his siblings. The worst part was understanding the people, that reach between the rich Muslims and the poor Christians. How would Bobby find friends? Would the screaming, proud, millionaire’s son, Sadiq, be a friend, or would Jahja, the very poorest of all? Who would be faithful when danger came?
