

A Boy Called Job by Arie Tuinman (HIS FIC TUI). A beautiful historical story. One dark stormy night in November, a founding is discovered on the steps of an old building in Kolderveen, a tiny village located in the north of Holland. His life was filled with trouble, but of this little Job could rightly be said: “Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast Thou ordained strength” (Psalm 8:2 KJV). This is a worthwhile book to read aloud to your children.

Beautiful Sunset – The True Story of the Last Days of a Young Footballer by J.H. Wilson (YOUTH BIO WIL). William Easton was enthusiastic about everything. School, friends, sports . . . especially sports. Physically strong and robust the young man was popular amongst all the other lads in his class at school. On the football field he was known for his skill and countless energy. However none of this lasted very long. A tragic accident at sixteen years of age confined the young boy to his bed. Family and friends looked on, helpless as there was nothing they could do. What everyone thought was just an accident turned out to be something far more serious and life threatening. Young William’s life seems to be in ruins ... but what he and others discovered is that in the middle of the ruins, you can find treasure. True stories have the ability to change lives in amazing ways. William’s story is true. The author used family correspondence and papers when writing the book. This is the story of a great life given to God. Whatever your favourite hobbies and pasttimes be sure to be enthusiastic about Christ as William was.

Books Children Love – A Guide to the Best Children’s Literature by Elizabeth Wilson (248.845 WIL REF). A love for reading is one of the most precious gifts parents can give their children. But how can busy moms and dads find the time to sort through thousands of children’s books to discover the really worthwhile ones? Here at last is a book that will help parents open up the wonderful world of reading for their children. Books Children Love is a comprehensive guide to the very best in children’s books. It provides an overview of excellently written, interest-holding books on as wide a range of topics as possible – books that also embody the ideals of traditional values and a Christian worldview. These are the “living books,” books that open windows onto the world God made for man to live in. Each book included has been carefully read and evaluated by children’s literature expert Elizabeth Wilson. Only those books that really catch and hold children’s attention, that are finely written, and that reflect basic Judeo-Christian values have been included. Books Children Love is intended to bring children and fine books together. In doing so, it can start them on a life – time adventure in which the fullness and glory and wonder of God’s creation is revealed through the inexhaustible richness of world of books.

Bound Only Once - The Failure of Open Theism by Douglas Wilson (273 WIL). Beauty Truth Goodness. Open theism as a failure of imagination, reason and nerve. Open Theists like to picture the God of classical Christian theism as a distant, despotic, micro-managing sovereign. The god of Open theism, on the other hand is ready to enter into new experiences and to become deeply involved in helping us cope as we, with him, face things we simply did not know would happen. They insist that God has knowledge, but not all knowledge, certainly not knowledge of the future acts of free beings. Such Open theistic inferences reveal a deep-seated devotion to Enlightenment categories and narrow unpoetic imaginations. Ideas have destinations, and one of the consequences of our trying to read the Scriptures without any poetry in our souls will be the eventual destruction of any possibility of ministering to souls. Just imagine the hymn writer trying to lift up the downcast – “I know what the future holds, but I know Who also doesn’t know much about it either.”
